

I fully suport this petition. I wiuld ask the FCC to consolidate this petition with the other petitions that ask to do away with the code requirement, and make a quick as possible ruling. Morse code does have it's place in amateur radio, but the ability to read morse code at any speed is not an indication of a person's character. I'm 57 years old and have been trying to learn to read since I was an 11 year old Boy Scout. There are alot of us guys that this happens to. It's not a matter of dedication or being too lazy, it's just some kind of a "block."
